

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A system of securing a pen to one's person so as to prevent accidental loss or theft. The system tethers a pen to an individual's clothing or clothing-accessory by a retractile cord while still allowing both normal use of the secured pen as well as convenient storage of the pen when not in use. The retaining system provides for securing a wide variety of pens or other similarly-shaped/sized implements to which a person may wish to apply it. The system is compact, lightweight, and without excessive tension so as not to hinder the normal use of the implement or appear unsightly when worn with a variety of clothing.